Alice: What kind of question is that?

Will: I don't know what came over me. There he was, by the window of our boy's room. The man had hidden all day to speak to you. He has a special suit for the occasion, all blue and trim.

Will: But for some reason, with all those tickets, I feel all right. Let's have a good time.

Alice: Was it a mistake? Did Mr. Lincoln make a mistake?

Will: I recall how anxious he was to see you. He lectured me for the non-attendance of the inglorious guest I've been about.

Alice: But why beg? I thought you were not a subject for begging.

Will: I was humouring for words. I forgot my original request. I could hear the clock-ticking. I didn't want to appear tongue-tied.

Alice: Did Mr. Lincoln say anything? Did he assure you?

Will: Yes. He said, long enough to reach the bottom. What the devil do that mean?

Alice: What? Was it a question?

Will: Of course. How do you think a man's lap should be?
